“ Emma (granny) as most of us knew her, was a very selfless woman. She went through alot in her life as I know from hearing her stories as I grew up. Though, she was strong and loving in her on ways. She watched over all her children, grandchildren, and great grandchildren. She would always be sure everyone was taken care of. We loved her and have many memories. Christmas at her small milstead house used to be packed. She always bought everyone a gift despite having little money. Her gifts were usually small gifts but meant a lot to us all because she did what she could to buy them. I think those are the kind that mean more than other gifts. One thing about her was that she was that woman that was the center piece of our family. She was strength for us all and held us all together. We miss you granny. I love you.
