“ It's almost Father's Day and I can remember laying in bed and patiently waiting for you to wake up so me and Parker could give you a gift a magnolia tree some chocolate covered raisons and a pair of lucky charms pajama pants . Those are the best times of my life and I'm so happy to have those memories. It makes me unbelievably sad to know that you are gone and you don't get to see our awesome son grow up and be the awesome person that he has become. You would be so proud of him. I can just see u in him every time I look at him I see you. It's so bad that your gone but I feel so lucky to still have a piece of you in him for your blood pumps in his veins and I share the gift of giving life with you even though your gone. I feel you everyday and not one min goes by not one day . I think of you and I wish you were here with me. Your memories never die . I know that it's not fair and I don't know why you had to go. Why something so good . Someone so precious to my heart and so close to home had to go. You were my family I remember thinking sitting on my front porch one day that I was so happy that I had what I had with you I was waiting for you to come get me and no matter what we were going through you were there for you was my family .. we made a family a real family together and we loved each other soo much. I would have been with you for the rest of my life without a doubt.. You see by far the man I wanted and still want and no one can or ever could compare to you and I just wish I could tell you. . Tell you something . Anything and know you could know . Could hear me or see me . I just wanna hear you .. see you and just wanna touch you Smell u one more time.. it's just not fair. How do I keep going and you took every reason for my being with you.. I don't know how I will make it or even if I will but the only hope that I have and the only reason to carry on for me is in the hopes that I can see you again one day. ..For that's the only way that I will ever be ok.
