“ Ken and I met and became best friends in 2005 when we were building our dream homes just down the road from each other. He was the best friend anyone could have. As we were both alone, we helped each other during the process. Ken had the best sense of humor; he made me laugh until I cried. I miss him so much already. I can still hear his voice and laughter. Rest well my friend. I know where you are now and it is peaceful. I do imagine you are keeping every soul around you laugh and smile.
