“ *When I met Linda about 30 years ago it was like we has known eachother all our life. A memory I have is when her car broke down. We tried for 3 days to get it going on the 4th day someone came by looked at and turned the key and started running like a new car. Linda didn't know it had a kill switch. I thought we would never stop laughing. Because a few months before my car broke down I called he for help and she said her car wouldn't make it to where I was. 2 days later when I saw her she was laughing, I ask her what she was laughing at. She said my car would have made it had she put the key
In it. She was a butt like that. I loved her warts and all*
