Thank you so much for making Nancy's service available for those of us who love she and Chuck, but who weren't able to be there. Hearing Anna and Chuck's words honoring dear Nancy was a great comfort. Oh how we miss her, and she surely adored her precious family. I know you will continue to honor her by living out what was most important to her. I will always be inspired by the loving example Nancy set for us: in hospitality, friendship and in loving Jesus. I send my love and prayers.

I'll never forget the first time I met Nancy. She was the most friendly person I had ever met at a church . She didn't know me or my family, but she instantly reached out to form a friendship. She knew how to make people feel loved and accepted. I'm going to miss Nancy.

“ Praying for the family at this time! May they find peace and healing! It is so very hard when someone is taken from us way to soon!! As believers we trust the hand of God and know the that he is ultimately in charge! I will always remember all the fun stories that Nancy shared and even the serious ones! Lol! I can see the look on her face and her saying “I’m serious” and “I’m not lyjn” She was one of a kind in her own special way which is why it is so hard to not physically have her here with everyone but, we know she is having the time of her life! Nancy you will forever be in our hearts and we will see you again!! Praying for all the family!! 🙏🙏🙏

“ So many visits over so many years that they sort of blend together. But one theme I know ran through all of them, and that was that no matter what we discussed, it was always in relation to the Lord, or the Kingdom, or what God was doing in people's lives. And that is why it always felt so good. Through all that happened in our lives, I could count on a godly and biblical perspective to bounce things off. All of our struggles pale in comparison to the glories we look forward to sharing, and though there's sadness for now while we miss her, the reunion we await will be so sweet that our sorrows will be forever forgotten.

“ Nancy and I met at a church in the Carolinas that my family attended for a brief time. She was always serving somebody and sharing her brand of hospitality everywhere she went! One day, we were both assisting getting a service set up, and we enjoyed the few moments here and there that we had to chitchat. Later, I found myself after the service sitting in her car for nearly 2 hours sharing about life. She had to be tired, but she made me feel like there was nothing she would rather be doing right then. That’s the night we became friends. After that, she was a combination of a friend and a mother figure to me, and also a spiritual mentor in the gift of hospitality. She took an interest in my family, my children, and my life. Time and time again, she invited me over to sit and talk in her beautiful home filled with things that reminded me of all of the precious little facets of Nancy. I don’t think I’ll ever be in another home that makes me feel like the person that on that home loved inviting people in. It wasn’t just the way she decorated her home, or the way she set out snacks to enjoy, it was the way she made a person feel as if it was a gift to be able to spend time with them. I learned so much from her! I got to know her husband Chuck, and I grew to care for both of them as a couple. One thing I know for sure... She loved her family. No family is perfect, and she also imparted that wisdom to me. She did not mind talking about the mistakes that she made in her past, and using them as a way to teach me, a younger woman. I admired that about her. She didn’t try to put on a Christian face as if Christians are perfect people. She owned who she was, “warts and all”, as she would say... and she was a beautiful soul that touched my life. I learned much from her candor and wit. I learned that it is important to slow down and talk to those around me, to invite them into conversation, and that loving on them in any way I can is WORTH the time. I miss those conversations sitting in the couch, with a glass of sweet tea and all Nancy’s beautiful things nearby, learning about life, friendship, and Jesus. I want to publicly thank Jesus for that precious time where I met someone who taught me many things. Chuck, carry on and try to stay close to Jesus in this time. You too are cared for and loved as a friend. God bless the entire family during this time of loss.

There could never be another Nancy. God broke the mold with her. I love you, Nancy!

“ I thank God I got to meet Nancy before she went to be with Jesus! In the short period of time that I was getting to know her, I just remember being drawn to her sweet spirit and that beautiful twinkle in her eyes. It was the light of God's love shining through her. She had a great sense of humor and a big heart. I'm going to miss Nancy but I look forward to seeing her again in heaven soon.
