“ My Mikemal,

You were/are such a blessing in my life and I miss you so enormously. Grieving for you is even harder than it was for Mario...

You wonderful and silly man...you worried whether I would grieve for you and now there's waterfalls of tears that I shed.

This doesn't stop me from constantly thanking God that he gave me another chance to be a happy wife with another wonderful husband.

You made me laugh so much and gave me the opportunity to make another husband laugh, something I so loved to do and miss so much but thank You, God for these immense blessings

Please pray for all of us here below, this life is so challenging honey!

Love and more love,

Your girly girl (your nickname for me💖💖💖💖)

“ Mike I will miss your wit and quite unique personality. My condolences to your family, because they have lost someone with a loving commitment to them, and enhancing the world as well as himself. Our first conversation was about apathy, and it's relationship to love. Our last about the MASH theme song. I am really going to miss those moments and the extending of our relationship to more than technical jargon and work related things. May the Lord welcome you and the comforter keep your family and all of us during and after this time.

“ Mike was an excellent technical SME and excellent leader. I have not worked directly with Mike in a couple of years. I am sad to know that I will not cross paths with him on this side of heaven but happy he is at peace. His attention to detail and tenacity in problem solving will be missed.

“ I knew Mike from work at AT&T. He was always willing to share his knowledge with people. He also was willing to listen to people to gain knowledge and techniques for trouble resolution. As he grew into the Area Manager position he thought through business decisions and how they would affect people and AT&T. Mike may have had a rough exterior but he was a good soul.
