“ Taylor is my child and she was born a boy. But she came to me over 2 years ago and said, mom, I am really a girl. I have prayed and ask God to take these thoughts away and he has not done so. I told her, I was not sure why she was born with boy parts and felt like a girl. I told her that I loved her very much and we would move forward as a family to help her in anyway possible. Many people did not understand, many friends stopped being her friend. She was afraid to attend church for fear of being shamed and that broke my heart. She was afraid to dress normal for work for fear of getting beat up. She did not tell us, the family sooner for fear, we would stop loving her. Taylor suffered with social anxiety and depression and was seeking help and on meds. She was the most kind, thoughtful person that could light up a room with her smile and laughter. She was just fun to be with, a great listener, very insightful and so smart. She loved her computer and she loved the Lord. She struggled with being a Christian and not understanding why God made her this way. The picture on this site was taken by her the weekend before her death. She left a beautiful note to us, her family, apologizing for needing to leave this earth. She loves us all, but the emotional pain was too great to deal with and everyday life. She wanted us to burn her body to the ground for what it had done to her. We chose a funeral and casket, because so many needed to say their goodbyes. We love you, Taylor, we miss you!!! I wish you did not feel you needed to leave, but Jesus now has a new angel. My baby, my baby, I love you so, your mom.

“ Hello the family of Taylor, I am in the same class with Taylor. I remembered in the winter when it was very cold, me and Taylor both stormed into the building freezing and we trembling. We shared a little talk and she introduced herself to me. Taylor is the nicest person I ever meet. Am from West Africa, a Muslim and covered. Few good people would come up to, introduce themselves and talk to me. That's the reason I will never forget her and I know she is in a good place. Am praying for you all, and please accept my sympathy.

“ I knew Taylor from a video game community like a few others did. Unfortunately I didn't get to know her as long as most did, even so I knew her long enough to care about her. Taylor was and will always be an amazing person, I didn't know she was struggling and it upsets me that I wasn't capable of helping her. The first time I met her was when I saw a new house next to mine (In the Video Game) and it belonged to her. We planned on creating this whole town and expanding to people. Everyone adored her including me. I didn't have to know her long to understand how special she was, she's given me some good memories I will never forget. We can all rest easy knowing that she will live on in our hearts and that all her good karma will be repaid in the afterlife. We will all miss you Taylor.

“ In Memory of Spencer (Taylor)

*Those we Love remain with us,
for Love itself lives on.
Cherished memories never fade,
because a loved one is gone.
Those we Love can never be,
more than a thought apart.
For as long as there is a memory,
they'll live on in our heart.

“ I'm not sure anyone in the family would have heard of me, but I knew Taylor when we were both in middle school/high school playing video games online together. It's been many years since I spoke to her, but that doesn't make her passing any less heartbreaking. Taylor was always a joy to talk to and never ceased to be funny and engaging. She made a positive difference in the lives of all those around her. May we all find peace and comfort in these memories.

“ Taylor was my roommate and an amazing person. She was always making jokes and telling me about some crazy technology thing she knew about. We would always play video games and I swear she would just let me win because she was so good at it. I hope that during this time, your family remains strong and will begin to heal. Taylor really was someone special. Love you all.
